Unofficial Student Government results released

ALESTLE STAFF REPORT

The unofficial results for the 2004-2005 Student Government elections were posted Wednesday.

According to a list of unofficial results, Cindy Holesko received 637 votes supporting her candidacy for president while Larry Brown, Holesko's competition, received 497 votes.

Nikki Grashoff won the vice president position with 756 votes while Dell Jones claimed the student trustee position.

Carl B. Mitchell, Cassandra

Costello, Milton Kidd, Matthew Townsend, Cameron Cobb, Tim Goldman, Maurice Lawson, Jesse Phelps, Alex English, Lise Suliman, Christine Williams and Betsy Hall were elected to the 12 senator positions.

The Student Government president, vice president and senators take office May 9. The student trustee takes office July 1.

Polls closed at 6 p.m. Tuesday. Elections were from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday at the Morris University Center, Peck Hall and the Student Fitness Special Services Academic Adviser and SIUE alumna Danita Mumphard is one of 20 semifinalists in the 2nd Annual Kraft Gospel Talent Search 2005 Contest.

The winner of the competition receives $25,000 and an audition with Sony Urban Gospel Music. Voting begins Thursday and continues through Wednesday.

Mumphard, who released the album,

"Eternally," in 2002, along with other semifinalists, will not know the results until summer.

"I did a minor focused in music and I was also an education major," Mumphard said. "I got my foundations here and I learned a lot. I also had my foundations in church and our family had a lot of musicians, so it's kind of a natural gift."

Mumphard learned of the competition earlier this year.

"I was looking in an Essence magazine and there was an advertisement for (the contest)," Mumphard said. "I like all styles of music; gospel is one of my favorites. (It's) something I thought I'd try."

Upon discovering the contest, Mumphard submitted an audition tape.

"It was an a cappella tape.

They wanted to hear the person's vocals without music on a VHS tape."

NEWS REPORTER

The festivities surrounding Chancellor Vaughn Vandegrift's installation will continue through Friday, culminating with the installation itself.

"What the chancellor wanted to do was have a week of events associated with the installation that would celebrate who we are," Executive Assistant to the Chancellor Bill Hamrick said. "So we're going to have a lot of different kinds of events. There's going to be all kinds of activities going on all week."

Thursday's themes are openness and wisdom.

Organizations may apply for award

ALESTLE STAFF REPORT

Thursday is the deadline for student organizations to apply for the student organization program awards.

Student Government will award four student organizations $500 to be used within the organization if the groups meets the criteria for recognition.

The New Program of the Year award recognizes a program hosted by a student organization that has been sponsored for less than three years, according to a press release.

The Diverse Program of the Year award recognizes a student organization program with diverse appeal.

The Educational Program of the Year award recognizes a student organization program that has scholastic appeal.

Finally, the Traditional Program of the Year award recognizes the student organization program that has been sponsored annually for three years or more.

The criteria for each of the awards that the program must have been held between April 1, 2004 and March 31, 2005, the organization may submit only one program per year, per category and an organization may only submit one program for one category.

Also, the press release said, "the Student Organization Advisory Board reserves the right to move a program into another category" and "make no award if in (Student Organization Advisory Board's) judgment no nomination warrants such recognition."

The deadline to apply is 4:30 p.m. Thursday. For more information, contact Student Organization Advisory Board Chair Eanista Dixon at 650-3464.

"A food manufacturer may be in Minnesota, but brokers make it so that the food products can be brought to us," Food Services Administrator Vickie Edsall said.

During the food show, students may sample the food and then fill out comment cards. The foods students like best will be made available in the MUC Center Court in the 2005 fall semester. There will be a prize drawing using the comment cards.

Some of the 33 food manufacturers that will be represented at the Food Show are Kellogg's, Pepsi, Frito-Lay, Tyson Foods and McCain Foods.

The food samples will include items like meatless and vegetarian options. For example, there will be chicken nuggets as well as a meatless version. There will be new vegetable options, such as black beans and corn and teriyaki green beans. Also, there will be new versions of familiar items, such as Cajun popcorn turkey fritters and chicken blasters, breaded chicken in hot sauce.

"It's just new market products that we don't have right now," Edsall said.

This year, the food show will be moved close to the bowling alley to create a better flow of traffic.

"Last time, it was mayhem. It will be a lot less confusing this year," Edsall said of the show.

Dining Services also asked students only to sample the food and not to create a meal with the samples.

"We have had people with trays come through sometimes," Edsall said.

A few of the most popular items sampled by students will be tested on the Dining Services menu during the summer semester.

For more information, contact Edsall at 650-3046 or at vedsall@siue.edu.

will be trophies given in three separate categories: fastest boat, best of show and the Titanic award.

The event is open to the Edwardsville and SIUE community.

"We definitely want to get the campus more involved in the event," Costello said.

Costello said he hopes to have an increase in participants from last year since the event has been advertised in Edwardsville.

"We had about 20 (teams) last year, and we're hoping to add 10 more, especially since it was emphasized to the Edwardsville community," Costello added.

There is still uncertainty as to what the winning prize may be. Costello said the fraternity does not want to give out a cash prize since the proceeds are going to the YMCA.

"There might be prizes from different sponsors," Costello said. "We are in the process of figuring out something not monetary."

Costello said he hopes people decide to participate.

"I didn't participate last year, but I saw how much fun everyone was having and decided to participate," Costello said. "It's fun to see the rivalries different organizations and people have."

To enter, each team must turn in a completed application, along with a $30 entry fee. Each team member will receive an event T-shirt of the event.

All entry forms are due by Sunday; however, registration will last until Saturday, April 16, but there is no guarantee for a T-shirt for late entry.

Fairy tale fanatic holds out for prince

I'm what you would call a hopeless romantic. I love movies, books, music and stories that relate to love and happiness and end happily ever after. Unfortunately, Disney and the brothers Grimm have done me a disservice. I'll admit, it's not entirely their fault, but I have developed into a person who can't make it through a week unless I get to delve into a love story. They make me feel bitter about life because the reality of it just can't measure up to the make-believe.

I don't think a dependence on the fantastic is healthy. Just by looking up the issue on www.google.com, I believe there are others with a similar opinion. Numerous message boards talk about the negative effects of fairy tales on the self-esteem and expectations of young girls and the roles they believe they are meant to play. Fairy tales aren't all bad; they simply tell a one-sided story and don't focus on the reality of human nature.

The first problem is the fact the female characters don't really represent a strong female character. I'll admit that has changed over the years. Now we have lead characters like Ella from "Ella Enchanted" and Mia in "The Princess Diaries;"

however, no matter how strong or independent they are, the princesses in these cases end up being saved by the male characters at one point in time or another. I don't really expect to need a man to come along and solve my problems for me, but the appeal of not having to do it myself and letting someone else handle the big stuff is still appealing.

Probably the most problematic part of my fairytale dream is that all the good stories, or at least my favorites, end with a kiss and a marriage. The princess has been saved by the prince and the world is back in order. What has this caused? I have an acute obsession with marriage. Yes, I'll admit, somewhere down the road I developed the idea my life will not be a success until I am married. The longer it takes, the more obsessive I become, especially considering I am in a serious relationship.

Some might ask, "What is
See FAIRY TALES, page 7

Political Cartoon

Stereotypes of gays still prevelant in television

HOUSTON (U-Wire) — One day during the winter break, the morning disc jockeys on a radio station in my hometown discussed the representation of homosexuals in the media. Apparently, they were overwhelmed by the sheer quantity of gay-related TV programs.

"It's like I can't turn on the TV without seeing two dudes making out," an incredulous DJ announced.

I don't know about him, but the only male-to-male kiss I've ever seen on television was between Bugs Bunny and Elmer Fudd. Nevertheless, the DJs raised a good point. There is an increasing amount of homosexual subjects addressed on television. What worries me, though, is the questionable accuracy of these depictions. I don't watch much television myself, but what I've seen has shown me a pretty one-sided view of homosexuality.

"Will and Grace" is hailed by many as a groundbreaking achievement in exposing homosexuality to the public. I've seen a few episodes, and it's definitely an entertaining show with great acting. Its humor, however, is very reliant on stereotypes. Jack, Will's raging flame of a best friend, is obsessed with show business, fashion, men and little else, and he's the driving force of the show's comedy. I'm not trying to say there aren't gay men out there with similar characteristics, but it's no coincidence that one of the first popular shows concerning homosexuality contains such a flagrant stereotype.

the problem with that?" Well, aside from the fact that even I think I'm annoying, I'm surrounded by images of the "happily ever after" ending everywhere I go. And I, usually a shrewd critic of consumerism, have bought it all hook, line and sinker.

Sure, I've made progress; at least now I realize I have a problem. However, seeing the vast array of bridal magazines and news stories, like the one about a workout of brides on the Channel 2 evening news Tuesday, and of course wedding-planning shows, I forget to keep myself in check. I've been completely convinced I have no option other than to marry if I want to be happy. I could tell myself otherwise, and others have told me the same, but it doesn't work.

Finally, I have a problem with the "once upon a time" and the "happily ever after" themes. Don't get me wrong; I love hearing those words because that usually means I'm going to enjoy the story that comes between them. But I'm old enough to realize there is no "happily ever after" ending, and that "once upon a time" is usually another way of saying, "No, not ever." The words are repeated just like the themes in the stories are repeated and I buy it every time.

Like I said, I'm a hopeless romantic – hopeless because the expectations I have developed from these stories is a romance that doesn't exist, and if it does exist, it doesn't last. There may be romance one day, but there is dirty laundry and dishes to wash the next.

I'm not saying tales of romance and love are bad, and I never would because I love them. I'm just saying there should be stories of truly strong women in the world doing incredible things, and the "marriage equals happiness" ending doesn't need to exist. We don't have to be married to be happy. Life isn't a fairy tale and we can't expect it to be.

Tyler Bennett
Editor in Chief

that raises so much discomfort, it's wise to include a familiar stereotype if you want to attract viewers. It's a time-proven principle. Look at early portrayals of blacks in entertainment. In the late 19th and early 20th centuries, black stereotypes were ludicrously exaggerated onstage. Blackface performers painted on grotesquely large lips, donned ratty wigs and spoke in a deliberately clumsy and uneducated manner.

Surely this wasn't a just representation of the black population, but it was the safest way to expose an unfamiliar subject to white audiences. Today's depictions of homosexuality may not be as negative or mean-spirited as blackface was, but one can hardly argue they're not reliant on stereotypes.

"Queer Eye for the Straight Guy," another enormously popular gay-themed show, presents a very narrow perspective on homosexuality. It's a highly enjoyable program, and its hosts are undoubtedly good at what they do, but their areas of expertise – interior design, fashion, grooming, wine and pop culture – lead audiences to view gay men in a very particular light.

They're stereotypes, even if they are positive. Not all gay men are necessarily preoccupied with glamour and appearances, just as not all black people sing well and not all Asians excel in math and science. Being well dressed and perfectly coiffed are not prerequisites to being homosexual, and viewers whose only exposure to gay people is through these shows may come out with a skewed, rigid conception of what a gay person is.

Let me reiterate that I'm not an expert on television. There are probably more holistic representations of homosexuality out there, but it's clear the most popular and visible TV shows rely on stereotypes. However, my intent is not to vilify those who make these programs – their aim is not to perpetuate stereotypes, but to entertain. The responsibility lies on the shoulders of the viewer. Remember that a TV show is just a TV show. ## Let's talk about sex

From "dormcest" to one-night stands, a closer look at trends in sexual relations among college students.

Andy Rathnow

There are three questions that ran through my mind when I first thought about "dormcest." What is dormcest anyway? What are the problems that result from dormcest? Why do people commit dormcest?

Well, the answer to what dormcest is, is simple. Dormcest is a romantic relationship, be it a one-night stand or longer, between two people who live in the same residence hall. If you live, or have lived, in one of the residence halls, chances are you know at least one person who has committed dormcest. Many of you can probably think of one of these relationships that has gone bad.

So, what problems result from dormcest?

"Relationships of that nature can lead toward awkwardness in future contact," Sarah Bradbury, the coordinator of Counseling Services sexual assault prevention program, said. "Anytime sex is involved, it complicates things, and communication is a must."

One person becoming attached when the other isn't looking for a relationship may also lead to problems within the residence hall.

University Housing Director Michael Schultz said there are very few serious problems he has had to deal with as a result of a lovers' quarrel inside their own living space.

Interestingly enough, another housing official said complaints from noise during sexual activity are more prevalent in Cougar Village than in the residence halls, and the most roommates — to discuss issues that may be easily overlooked.

Everyone who engages in sexual activity has to be mindful of the risk of sexually transmitted diseases and pregnancy.

Health Services head nurse Sue Grimes said STDs are one of the biggest risks because, many times, protection is not being used.

"Hopefully, more planning would go into this type of life decision."

common complaint that comes up is partners having sex while a roommate is in the room.

Schultz said the roommate contracts are supposed to line out what is and is not allowed in the rooms, and they are designed to foster a dialogue between the

Every sexually active person must also keep in mind that STDs can also be spread through oral sex.

So, why do people choose to

Casual relationships may be fun, but only for that one special night

OMAR RASCHID
DAILY ORANGE

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (U-Wire) —The old equation, though a cliché, seems to be true. Take two hormonally charged students, add a splash of alcohol, a sprinkling of non-commitment, and the common product will usually be a one-night stand. As there is a never-ending supply of both alcohol and willing participants, college campuses certainly see their fair share of the momentary mambo.

However, make no mistake of the power of the one-night stand. This isn't some halfway hookup. The term one-night stand implies the full monty, the big show or going all the way. The key factor in determining a one-night stand, however, is a clean break afterward. The one-night stand is viewed as pure, unadulterated non-committal sex with absolutely no later entanglements.

While there are the obvious exceptions, the common consensus seems to be that the event can have very different perceptions from each member. One side may think this is the beginning of something serious

"I think that, in my experience, one-night stands are very different for girls and guys."

while the other may see the activities as a mere midnight snack.

"I think that, in my experience, one-night stands are very different things for girls and guys," junior Alisha Ricardi said. "Girls are more open to continuing relationships. Guys are more comfortable with banging a girl for a night."

Many believe the reasons for this differentiation stem from a variety of factors. First, popular belief still pervades that women are more emotional than men; therefore, the sexual act is deemed more monumental and not to be wasted on a simple one-night tryst.

It is seen as an investment toward something deeper, rather than a single evening's transaction. This type of thought process may then lead to the aforementioned problem where one contestant in the horizontal twist assumes the act is the first of many in an ongoing relationship. Disparity may cause a number of problems within the pseudo-relationship when one member of the duo is seeking ways to desperately cut off future connections.

"I've definitely seen people looking for different things in a one-night stand," business and communications sophomore Amie Owen said. "Some people go into it looking for a relationship. When they aren't looking for the same thing, they will get different results."

Both men and women have used their share of tactics to get rid of a one-night-standee who hopes to turn it into something more. Not answering calls, feigning illness, changing instant messenger names, blatantly ignoring and even conjuring nonexistent significant others are popular tactics students have employed to get the message across.

"People take things differently going into a one-night stand," sophomore Greg Cignavitch said. "It's too bad when one gets the wrong impression."

While one-night stands may have different expectations for each participant, there are yet more reasons why they occur in the first place. However, there is still a disparity between temporary temptresses and single-use studs as to the reasons why such behavior happens. Fears of commitment, stress-free fun and general drunkenness are cited as explanations for the popularity of one-night stands as an accepted way to occupy one's evening.

"They're fine by me," Cignavitch said. "As long as you commit dormcest? This is perhaps the hardest question to answer. I have heard people complain the overnight guest policy of the residence halls leads to dormcest by forcing people to "sleep" with a person from the same building.

"Hopefully, more planning would go into this type of life decision," Schultz said of the complaint.

Grimes and Bradbury said they agreed any sexual conduct should involve a commitment and should not be taken lightly.

Easy access to people inside your own building can also lead to accelerated relationships, causing sex to become an issue sooner than in high school relationships and even post-college relationships. Many people I talked with said they had rules about avoiding sexual relationships with people in the same wing or floor but not the same building.

The open atmosphere of a college environment, freedom from your parents and a lack of rules to adhere to also contribute to the open sexual environment in the residence halls.

Cougar Craze goes tie-dye

AMBER ERNST
LIFESTYLES STRINGER

Need some flare in what you wear? Campus Activities Board invites SIUE students and faculty to come tie-dye a T-shirt Friday from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the Morris University Center Goshen Lounge.

CAB will provide the T-shirt and all other necessary supplies. Just show up, find an available table, and let the tie dyeing begin.

Tie dyeing is a method of coloring fabrics by tightly tying waxed thread around sections of the fabric so that they are not exposed to the dye. After dyeing and untying the fabric, you've got a bold, colorful pattern and a great way to liven up clothes, linens, curtains, or otherwise.

"As always, the CAB events are held to give students and faculty a break from their busy work/life schedules to have a little fun," CAB Entertainment Chair Joe Gibbons said. "Plus, they get a free T-shirt out of the deal as well. What more can you ask for?"

For more information on the Cougar Craze: Ultra Cool Tye Dye T-shirts event, contact J. Gibbons at jgibbon@siue.edu or J. Barbour at jbarbou@siue.edu.

SEX

have two consenting parties, I don't see what's wrong with it. People want to get busy."

According to many students, the act of getting busy usually involves copious amounts of alcohol. Students said inhibitions are lower while drinking their preferred beverages. These marginalized inhibitions have two different effects – increased confidence to make the move and less rationale to say no to the augmented advances. A literal mating of both of these effects gives birth to the one-night stand.

"People get drunk, and things get out of control," international relations and history senior Steve Cooper said. "I think a lot of one-night stands are alcohol-related. That's when hormones are flowing and inhibitions are lowered."

"People get drunk, and they don't know what the hell they're doing," Owen said.

Yet another factor for the prevalence of these one-night stands seems to be plain and simple revenge. Many students said the easiest way to either get over a past love or to get back at a previous one is to go forth in search of meaningless sex.

Passionate, no-strings-attached copulation is a common way to release stress and make one feel better about oneself. To a variety of students, sex is seen as the ultimate compliment. If one is willing to do the deed with another, it usually indicates the "chosen one" has somehow made the grade – a boost to one's ego. This rise in self-esteem is important if one has just been spurned by a former flame.

"I've definitely seen one-night stands as a rebound after a girlfriend," Cignavitch said.

One-night stand tactics also allow sexual players to get away with things that would not normally be accepted within the confines of a relationship. Some said an appetizing feature of the one-night stand is that it is just that – one night. Meaning, desires and fantasies may be requested and enjoyed without fear of worrying about what the other thinks. As sex in relationships can often suffer from true honesty, one-night stands serve as an outlet to leave hidden inhibitions at the door.

Whatever the reason, one-night stands are a mainstay and vital component to the college experience. Whether by way of alcohol, hormones or just plain revenge, the one-night stand is a common feature and, thus, further propagates notions of the nonexistence of normal relationships on campus.

Attention Graduating Students

Did you know that you can reduce the interest rate on your student loans and save thousands of dollars by consolidating your student loans after graduation?

The Higher Education Act, established by Congress, allows any graduate (or parent with PLUS loans) to consolidate their student loans by combining all their eligible student loans into a single loan issued by a new lender. Graduates who do this immediately after graduation (while they are still in their non-repayment period) are able to reduce the interest rate on all their eligible loans by 0.60% - potentially saving themselves thousands of dollars.

There are several other benefits associated with Student Loan Consolidation and these include:

- The ability to reduce your monthly interest repayments by up to 54% by extending your repayment period. This may help you in matching your income level to your repayment obligations.
- Fixing the interest rate on your loans to take advantage of the historically low interest rates that are currently available for the life of your loans. Your existing loans are variable and could rise over time as interest rates rise. Consolidation can ensure that this doesn't happen.
- Dealing with only one monthly loan repayment from one lender can make your life easier.
- Save even more on your repayments by taking advantage of "borrower benefits" that can reduce your interest rate by up to an additional 1.25% by making electronic and on-time repayments.

Does it Matter When You Choose to Consolidate?

Yes. If you are about to graduate (or have recently graduated) timing is critical to maximizing the amount that you can save with consolidation. If you wait too long to apply for consolidation, you might miss out on the opportunity to reduce the interest rate on all your loans by 0.60%.

What Does it Cost to Consolidate?

There are no fees or credit checks, nor is there any penalty for early repayment of your consolidation loan. Note however, that you can only consolidate once and consolidation can affect certain deferment and cancellation benefits associated with loans.

Are you about to Graduate?

Act now by registering with the Student Loan Consolidation Program (SLCP). It is free and involves no obligation. SLCP will simply provide you with information on what consolidation is all about and contact you after graduation to remind you of the opportunity to reduce your interest rate by consolidating early.

For more information, call a loan counselor at 1-866-311-8076 or click on our ad at www.thealestle.com to see if you qualify for these savings.

While visiting the paper online, be sure and sign up for the email edition. It's the best way to stay informed beyond graduation, and it's free.

April brings showers of alcohol awareness

COURTNEY RAKERS
LIFESTYLES EDITOR

In an effort to reduce the prevalence of drinking and drug use among youth, the National Council on Alcoholism and Drug Dependence designated April as Alcohol Awareness Month.

Since 1987, the month has been dedicated to preventing underage drinking through information, skills and support.

According to a press release from the Illinois Drug Education Alliance, "Between 1993 and 2001, 18- to 20-year-old drinkers showed the largest increase (56 percent) in binge-drinking episodes among American adults. This group of underage drinkers also had the second-highest rate of binge drinking, outstripped only by young adults ages 21-25."

So, college students under the legal drinking age make up the highest percentage of binge drinkers. The consumption of five or more drinks for males or three or more for females in one evening is considered binge drinking. A standard drink is one 12-ounce bottle of beer or wine cooler, one 5-ounce glass of wine or 1.5 ounces of 80-proof distilled spirits.

The Institute of Medicine and National Research Council found that more youth in the United States drink alcohol than smoke tobacco or marijuana, making it the drug most used by American youth.

Research groups have accepted that alcohol use among college students may lead to high-risk behaviors, such as unprotected sex or sexual assault, drinking and driving, homicide and suicide.

Meanwhile, studies have shown early use of alcohol can slow a child's physical, mental and social development. Adolescents who abuse alcohol may remember 10 percent less of what they have learned than those who do not drink.

In a commentary for Join Together Online, Dwayne Proctor said, "If binge drinking was a disease that caused 1,400 deaths, 500,000 injuries, 70,000 sexual assaults and 110,000 arrests each year, you could be certain that the response would be massive and comprehensive."

Following the trend at a growing number of universities around the country, Washington University began its Just the Facts campaign in August to end the misconception among students that most of their peers abuse alcohol. The campaign included a Web site, 300 posters, ads in the student newspaper and public service announcements. The program is a part of the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism and the U.S. Department of Education's Social Norms Research Project.

H. Wesley Perkins, a sociology professor at Hobart and William Smith Colleges, said the common practice of showing students videos of alcohol-related accidents was ineffective.

"They aren't thinking about their health if they are 18- to 34-years-old," Perkins said. "They are thinking about their social life."

Thinking only of a social life involving alcohol can lead to dangerous behaviors among students. A study by the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration found one in five drivers under the age of 21 have driven under the influence of alcohol or other drugs. SAMHSA found 21 percent of 16- to 20-year-olds, or four million drivers, had driven under the influence. Only 4 percent of the drivers studied said they had been arrested and charged for driving under the influence.

Additionally, location plays a role in the prevalence of impaired driving. According to the study, "More young people in the Midwest had driven under the influence than those in other regions; rural youth were more likely to drink or drug and drive than those in other cities."

Some college students may believe alcoholics drink every day. According to SAMHSA, "Alcoholism is not determined by how often people drink, but whether or not they can control their drinking once they start." Some warning signs of an alcohol problem include mood changes, temper flare-ups, irritability and defensiveness. Students may also develop problems in school, such as poor attendance and lower grades.

A tendency to switch social groups or the development of a "nothing matters" attitude may also indicate trouble. Finally, a lack of involvement in former interests, less energy, memory lapses and poor concentration are also signs of a problem.

For more information about Alcohol Awareness Month, e-mail ideaoffice@verizon.net.

For information regarding a potential alcohol abuse problem, contact SIUE Health Service at 650-2842 or the SIUE Wellness Center at 650-2935 for confidential help.

The SIUE men's tennis team broke its run of bad luck in more ways than one.

After the team faced a couple of injuries and being on a three game losing streak, the Cougars faced the Quincy University Hawks Tuesday and won 7-2.

Not only did the win end the streak, but junior Matt Warner was able to bounce back from a knee injury he suffered over the weekend to assist sophomore Justin Free in doubles play.

"Warner said he felt good enough to play," said Head Coach Bill Logan. "And I was very pleased with (Free's) play, doubles and singles."

Free was able to defeat his opponent 6-1, 6-1 in his singles match. Along with Free, freshman Dan Glon won 6-2, 6-2; senior Andy Renner won 7-5, 6-4; senior Chris Rigdon came out victorious 6-4, 6-0 and junior Dan Lipe finished it off, winning 7-6, 7-6.

In the doubles matches Warner and Free won 8-4 and Renner and Rigdon served up an 8-0 score finish and picked up the doubles points.

"I'm very happy with our guys' play," Logan said. "This win puts us over .500 and locks us in the (Great Lakes Valley Conference) tournament."

SIUE is currently in fifth place in the GLVC and the conference tournament only takes the top six.

The Cougars move to 8-7 overall, 3-3 in the GLVC. The team gears up to face Bellarmine University 9 a.m. Saturday at the SIUE tennis courts.

Tim Bauersachs receives second team All-Region

MATTHEW BRUCE
SPORTS REPORTER

SIUE basketball standout Tim Bauersachs received a big honor last week when the National Basketball Coaches Association named him to the second team Great Lakes All-Region.

The 6-foot-5-inch forward also made school history last month when he became the first SIUE player ever to earn first team All-Great Lakes Valley Conference honors.

"I first thank my Lord and Savior Jesus Christ," Bauersachs said. "I give all the honor and glory to him."

"When you play on a winning team it really helps . . . the exposure. So I just have to thank my teammates," he added.

Bauersachs set a school record by playing and starting in 113 games over the course of his SIUE career, including 32 starts this year.

Bauersachs, a senior from Pinckneyville, Ill., is coming off of his best season yet. He led the Cougars in scoring, with 11.9 points per game, and field goal percentage, at 63.6 percent. Bauersachs was second behind freshman J.B. Jones in assists with 100, and he pulled down 5.8 rebounds per game.

"He knew this was his last shot and he stepped it up a notch," said head coach Marty Simmons.

Bauersachs' numbers in points, field goal percentage and rebounds have steadily increased since he joined the Cougars in the 2001-02 season.

"If you look at my past stats, I averaged (between) five and seven points," said Bauersachs in reference to his previous

Track and field's first outdoor meet a blast in SEMO

JONG CAMBRON
SPORTS REPORTER
ZACH GROVES
SPORTS EDITOR

After a successful indoor season, which led to the nomination of 12 All-Americans, the SIUE men's and women's track teams launched the outdoor season at the 24th Gatorade Classic.

The outdoor meet was Friday and Saturday at Southeast Missouri State University and featured two class categories — one for NCAA Division I schools and the other for non-NCAA Division I schools. SIUE participated in the non-Division I class.

"There were some disappointments and great things that happened," assistant track coach Eileen McAllister said.

Although SIUE was not permitted to earn points, the men's team had 10 top-three finishes, and the women's team placed four members in the top five.

"There is always a bit of downward trend between the indoor season and outdoor season," women's head coach Ben Beyers said.

Junior Dustin Bilbruck finished first in the javelin with a throw of 203 feet, 3 inches. The "Dusty (Bilbruck) had a tremendous first meet," Beyers said of his javelin throws. "That puts him in the top seven or eight in the nation."

Junior Phil Freimuth finished third in the event with a throw of 178-10. He also finished third in the high jump with a leap of 6-6.

In other field events, senior Lee Weeden placed third in the shot put with a distance of 53-10 1/4, and sophomore Anthony Weber ranked second in the pole vault with a vault of 15-6.

The men's team also flourished in the running events.

Senior Ryan Boyll placed second in the 5,000-meter run with a time of 15 minutes, 24.25 seconds.

"It was a pretty decent start for (Boyll)," McAllister said. "He pretty much had to run by himself in the event."

Meanwhile, with a time of 48.81 seconds, freshman Kyle Rose crossed the finish line in second place in the 400. Senior Jeff Fearday was close behind Rose with a time of 49.09, good

Soccer signals early success with two wins to open spring season

JANELLE DOBSON
SPORTS REPORTER

Coming off of a spectacular fall season, placing second in the nation in Division II, the SIUE men's soccer team picked up where it left off to begin the spring season.

"It was a good year," junior midfielder and team captain Brian Higgins said. "You can't complain about finishing second place in the nation."

The Cougars had a successful season with a Great Lakes Valley Conference record of 8-0-2, and an overall record of 19-3-2.

Players from the team received numerous honors for their talent. Senior defender Michael Burgund was named second team All-American. Burgund was a major part of the Cougars' aggressive defense, which only allowed 0.64 goals per game. He also earned a spot on the All-GLVC team, along with five other teammates.

Sophomore forward Mike Banner, junior forward Pete Cacciatore, junior midfielders Higgins and John Matthews and junior back Kevin Thibodeau were all named to the All-GLVC team.

But the people on the team were not the one to earn awards.

Head coach Ed Huneke was named Great Lakes Coach of the Year, his 19th with the Cougars.

The Cougars will lose two seniors from their team, Burgund and back Dan Mosier.

"They were a big part of the team, but we have a really strong group coming back," Higgins said.

The Cougars' offensive end will be loaded with all of the their forwards returning this season.

"I feel like we should be really successful because we have a talented group of guys who are hard workers and determined to get back to where we were last year," Higgins said.

In addition to the returning players, the Cougars welcomed three new members to the team this spring.

Freshman Jonathan Barth transferred to SIUE this semester from Oakland University.

Also transferring to SIUE is freshman Afif Najjar, who came from the University of Memphis. Both will look to fill some of the open spots in the defensive lineup.

Sophomore midfielder/back Andrew Crider will join the team as well. He has been a student at SIUE for three years, but this will be his first year playing soccer for the Cougars.

According to Higgins, the team has been training hard since January to insure they will have another successful season.

"We have been weightlifting three times a week since the week after winter break," Higgins said. "We started real practices the week after Spring Break."

In addition to practices, the Cougars have played two games.

Their first game of the spring season was March 29 at the Ralph Korte Stadium against McKendree College. The Cougars edged the Bearcats 2-1.

Scoring for the Cougars was freshman goalkeeper Greg Crook. The second goal ended up as a "gift" from the opposing team's goalkeeper.

"It was a miscue on his part," Huneke said of McKendree's goalkeeper. "He should have handled the ball. The kick was by one of his teammates and it would be what you call an 'own ball'."

Crook's goal, though unusual for a goalkeeper, did not surprise Huneke all that much.

"He has a real ability to strike a ball extremely well," Huneke said.

The team faced Eastern Illinois University. EIU is a Division I school, but that did not intimidate the Division II Cougars. They scored three goals for third in the event.

Freshman Jonathan Bannister also thrived, finishing second in the 400-meter hurdles with a time of 54.18.

"They all looked competitive and strong," McAllister said of the men's team.

The women's team proved just as triumphant as it almost held a 1-2-3 sweep in the 100 hurdles. Rather than placing first, second and third, freshman Asaki Carr and sophomores Brittany Reeves and Valerie Simmons ranked second, third and fourth. Carr's time of 14.71 was an eight-hundredth of a second behind first place finisher Myra Bess of Indiana State.

In the 400 hurdles, senior Jenny Jaquez placed fourth with a time of 1:05.19. Junior Shavon Shegog ranked seventh in the 400 run with a time of 1:00.53, and senior Lee Ann Lomax finished the 800 in 2:20.23, placing ninth.

Junior Holly Noller was the only Cougar on the women's team to place in the top 10 in field events, finishing fourth in the javelin with a throw of 120-8.

Beyers said he expects the teams to take their competition up a notch in the coming Big Blue Classic, which will begin Thursday in Charleston.

"We need to demonstrate the effort to be champions day in and day out," Beyers said. "I am looking forward this week to a better effort for an all-around heart on the track."

weight room. Coach Simmons really taught me how to play harder. He's a great coach, there's no getting around that."

Bauersachs' impact on the team extended beyond the basketball court and into locker room.

"He was an extension of me and the rest of the coaches," Simmons said. "He was like an assistant coach."

"He always led by example because he was so hard working," Simmons added.

"Even on the court, he plays with such a passion and a drive. And he cares. He cares about this organization."

Bauersachs said leading was all part of his role on the team.

"I was team captain," Bauersachs said. "I made sure we were focused, and that we worked hard. And, the captain has to work hard. That's what being a leader is all about."

in the first 20 minutes of the game and handed EIU a 3-1 loss.

Matthews scored the first goal off of a cross from sophomore midfielder Victor Pacheco. Pacheco scored the next two goals and one assist for the Cougars.

SIUE will face Drury University Saturday at Ralph Korte Stadium. The Cougars have two games left on their spring schedule, both of which will be played in the Governor's Cup at Northern Illinois University.

MOST NURSES WILL ENTER THE U.S. HEALTHCARE SYSTEM.
YOU'RE NOT MOST NURSES.

Most nurses spend their entire careers in the same hospital. In the United States Air Force, it's unlikely you'll even spend it in the same state or country. You'll have the opportunity to practice nursing in as many as 20 different fields in a variety of nursing environments. And you'll feel a greater sense of shared responsibility when you have the opportunity to actually lead your team. Sound like the kind of career you'd like to have? Then call 1-800-423-USAF.
